

USING REVISION PLANS TO TAKE CONTROL

The medium-term plans (April-June Plans) are for you to be able to clearly visualise when your exams are. Add the dates for holidays so that you can see if you have a day or an evening after school for revision. There are a number of tasks that are advised:

1. Write the names and times of each of your exams in the 'Examination' box.
2. Make sure that you know the content required for each paper.
3. Start dividing your subjects to be revised in the 'Revision' section - remember that some exams may be much later than others, plan accordingly.
4. Include important social events into your medium term plans. There is no need to miss out - as long as you have planned around it.
5. If you have subjects or areas that need more work, make sure you put in more effort on them. Don't just concentrate on subjects that you are best at!
6. Use this monthly plan to give the initial structure to your weekly diary.

Use the weekly diary template to divide your topics into 'chunks'. Remember your brain works best in 25 minute bursts. So use your 'Brain Breaks' between each session, or walk around, or get yourself a snack.

Be sure to plan breaks into your schedule too, and your social engagements. It is important to continue with your hobbies and sports during the months leading up to your exams. It is good for you to get the exercise and it is a treat for you to look forward to after all of that revision!

Do make sure though that you get the balance right - guilt often increases your stress levels. It is important that you are well organised and in control of your learning.

Empowerment is the key to success!
