Introduction

This inspection was carried out by one of Her Majesty's Inspectors and four additional inspectors. Inspectors observed 27 teachers and 29 lessons, and saw parts of 14 other lessons and activities. Discussions were held with senior and middle leaders, staff, governors and groups of students. The inspectors observed the school's work and looked at the school's self-evaluation and planning documents, external evaluations of the school's work, policy documents and students' work. They also scrutinised 120 questionnaires sent in by parents and carers, and questionnaires completed by staff and a sample of students from each year group.

The inspection team reviewed many aspects of the school's work. It looked in detail at the following:

- the consistency in the quality of teaching to ensure high levels of progress for all students, in particular for higher-attaining students, girls and students with special educational needs and/or disabilities
- the impact of the curriculum and care, guidance and support in promoting outstanding outcomes for all students
- the contribution to school improvement of partnerships and the business and enterprise specialism
- the impact on student outcomes of the monitoring and evaluation carried out by senior and middle leaders.

Information about the school

Bishop Fox's Community School is smaller than average and serves the town of Taunton and its surrounding area. The school has held business and enterprise specialist status since 2003. Most students are of White British heritage and the vast majority speak English as their first language. The percentage of students known to be entitled to free school meals is below the national average. The proportion with special educational needs and/or disabilities is slightly below average. Their needs include specific learning difficulties (dyslexia) and social, emotional and behavioural issues. The proportion of students who have a statement of special educational needs is half the national average. There is a designated resource base in the school for students with hearing impairment.

Main findings

Bishop Fox's is a good school and its commitment to sustained improvement has enabled it to move at a good pace since the last inspection. In this outstandingly caring and supportive environment, students are nurtured as individuals, enjoy their learning and achieve well. Under the leadership of a dynamic headteacher, the strong senior leadership team have demonstrated the drive, determination and passion required of leaders and managers in a successful school. Although some initiatives are still relatively new, others are firmly embedded in practice, most importantly, the systems for tracking students' progress and devising effective programmes of intervention to address any potential underachievement. As a result, the school is able to show a rising trend in attainment and outcomes and all students make good progress, regardless of their background, starting points or special educational needs and/or disabilities. The school is in a good position to continue this improvement because:

- it is led well by a headteacher who has a clear vision for its future
- effective action has been taken to strengthen leadership and management at departmental level and hold staff more firmly to account
- school development planning and successful interventions to support learning are based firmly on the findings of accurate self-evaluation
- there is a strong sense of teamwork and collaboration among staff and a commitment to raising attainment and improving achievement for all.

The quality of teaching and learning is good overall. It is improving because of sharper and more rigorous monitoring by senior staff, with a clear focus on improving classroom practice. Expectations of students' capabilities have been raised through more stringent use of assessment data to set challenging targets and inform teachers' planning, so that tasks are more closely tailored to students' individual needs. The best lessons are characterised by innovative and challenging learning experiences that ensure high levels of student participation and engage students as co-constructors in the learning process. Teachers use effective questioning to gauge students' understanding and, where necessary, re-shape explanations and offer high-quality verbal and written guidance about steps for improvement. However, these skills are not yet shared by all teachers across the school. School leaders recognise that monitoring and evaluation are not yet sufficiently refined to ensure that the very best practice is seen across all curriculum areas.

Students say they feel exceptionally safe in school and the outstanding systems to support their welfare have an extremely positive effect on their personal development. Students make an extensive contribution to the life of the school and the wider community, thanks to the quality of the curriculum, the outstanding range of partnerships and the excellent opportunities arising from the school's specialist status. Behaviour is good in and around the school; students are polite and courteous to each other and staff and say that they enjoy their time at the school. This is illustrated by the significant improvement in attendance, which is now high.

What does the school need to do to improve further?

- Increase the proportion of good and better teaching by ensuring that:
  - systems for monitoring and supporting teaching and learning result in the very best practice being seen more consistently across the curriculum
  - teachers use assessment data consistently well when planning lessons so that work matches the needs of individual students and provides high levels of challenge for all
  - teachers develop their use of probing questions in lessons to stimulate students' active participation and provide greater opportunity for students to develop and explain their ideas fully
  - day-to-day assessment is used consistently well across all subjects so that all students understand precisely what subject-specific actions they must take to improve their work.

Outcomes for individuals and groups of pupils*2

- The quality of learning in classrooms has improved since the last inspection. In the majority of lessons observed, students made good progress and achieved well. They enjoy active, practical learning, especially when supported by the use of new technologies, and appreciate the opportunities to extend their thinking.
- GCSE examination results have improved over the last three years and attainment is now broadly average and rising in most subjects. The standards seen in lessons and students' books and the school's latest analysis of performance for 2010 suggest that the trend of improvement is set to continue and students in Years 10 and 11 are on track to achieve their challenging targets.
- In 2009, the trend of good progress being made by boys continued. However, the progress made by girls fell below that of boys. Senior leaders acted swiftly and improvements in the tracking of progress and use of assessment data to inform a more focused approach to intervention have helped to even out the gap in achievement.

- Students with special educational needs and/or disabilities, including the small number of hearing-impaired students, make similar progress to their peers because of the high quality individual and personalised support programmes which are put in place. However, progress in some lessons is not as good as it could be because work does not always best meet individual needs.
- The business and enterprise specialism makes an excellent contribution to students' achievement, development and enjoyment of school life. It engages students in learning and helps them to gain the skills they need for education, training and employment. Students' aspirations are continually being raised and, last year, the number of students who left school and did not go into further education, employment or training was below the national average.
- Students' behaviour is good overall, especially in the lessons that engage and motivate them. A few of the students who returned the questionnaires, or who spoke to inspectors, said that there are occasions when their learning in lessons can be disrupted by others.
- The school has worked hard to improve attendance and has put in place a number of support mechanisms which have proved to be effective, particularly in reducing the number of students who are persistently absent.
- Opportunities for students to contribute to the school and wider community are extensive and diverse and participation rates are strong. The opportunities include a wide range of activities in sport, business and enterprise projects and mentoring other learners. Students play a greater role now in helping school staff and departments to evaluate and support the quality of learning.

How effective is the provision?

- The way in which the school cares for and supports students is outstanding. Everyone is known as an individual and the excellent links to external agencies complement a coherent, integrated approach to ensure the well-being of all students, especially those most in need of support.
- The flexible learning centre does an excellent job in supporting students who find learning a struggle, including the increasing number of disaffected students who join the school as a result of mid-year moves from other schools within the local authority. It is a valuable aspect of provision in supporting achievement and ensuring that students continue coming to school, even when they find being in lessons difficult.
- Individual support and provision for students with special educational needs and/or disabilities and the small number of hearing-impaired students are strong, thanks to the range and quality of personalised programmes available. For example, the programme to support reading recovery is particularly successful as a result of the high-quality, one-to-one withdrawal work.
- The school has developed a comprehensive and detailed system to set targets for students and to track their progress. The resulting information is used well to identify students who could achieve more, but not all teachers make full use of this information when they plan their lessons.
- The curriculum is developing well and provides an appropriate level of flexibility to meet the needs of individuals. Although not yet fully embedded, there are a number of emerging strengths in the development, planning and evaluation of the curriculum to raise students' aspirations, enjoyment and achievement.
- The school's specialist status has been used effectively to support the recent development of the Key Stage 3 curriculum, with the introduction of an enterprise skills programme for Year 9 students.
- At Key Stage 4, specialist status and the school's partnership work with business and other local providers have improved the breadth and balance of academic, vocational and applied learning opportunities available for students. This improvement has enabled a much greater degree of personalisation for students when selecting courses.
- The range of extra-curricular and enrichment opportunities on offer is good.

These activities are well attended by all groups of students and give support to aspects of their academic and personal development.

- The large majority of lessons observed were good or better. The best lessons are carefully planned to meet the differing needs of students, move along briskly and provide frequent and high-quality opportunities for students to participate and drive learning forward. These lessons were underpinned by teachers’ relaxed, yet highly professional relationships with classes.
- Less effective lessons, where progress is satisfactory rather than good, typically, have the following characteristics:
  - a tendency for teachers to talk for too long, with the result that students spend too much time listening passively
  - learning activities that are slow paced, not challenging, or do not match the needs of all students
  - questioning that rarely delves deep in order to check students’ understanding or that fails to create opportunities for students to generate and explore ideas of their own.
- Marking and assessment vary in quality. They are at their best in design and technology, English, and geography, where teachers provide precise subject-specific guidance that clearly identifies what students need to do to improve their work. For example, an outstanding geography lesson engaged students in a dialogue about assessment and empowered students to articulate the key features required to improve their verbal and written responses. However, in many cases, guidance simply confirms whether students have completed work, corrects what they have written, or provides general comments.

How effective are leadership and management?

- The headteacher inspires a strong belief in the school’s success, which is shared by staff, parents and carers and students. Leaders at all levels share the same vision for improvement, focusing on raising achievement for all students. Increasingly thorough self-evaluation draws on a range of information which helps the school to identify areas for development, leading to increasing accountability for staff and improving outcomes for students.

Inspection grades: 1 is outstanding, 2 is good, 3 is satisfactory, and 4 is inadequate

Please turn to the glossary for a description of the grades and inspection terms

- The variability in the quality of monitoring and evaluation of teaching, learning and assessment sometimes results in overly optimistic judgements. The school is working hard to ensure that the best practice is shared and, consistently, applied across the entire curriculum.
- Governors play a good supporting role in the school’s development. They have a good understanding of the strengths and weaknesses of the school and ensure that it provides good value for money. Governors’ confidence and expertise in evaluating the performance of the school in relation to national expectations and in holding it to account are growing.
- Outstanding safeguarding practices complement the outstanding care, guidance and support in the school. Every care is taken to ensure that the school is safe and that policies and procedures are rigorous and meticulously maintained.
- The school promotes equality of opportunity strongly through effective policies and procedures that ensure outcomes and experiences for all students are fair and positive.
- The school’s contribution to community cohesion is good. Its strengths are in well-established international links and its engagement with the local community, particularly through the ‘Community Action’ group and through its specialist status. Students’ understanding of life in other communities across Britain is not as well developed.

Of the parents and carers who responded to the Ofsted questionnaire, the large majority responded positively to every statement. They believe that the school is well led and are particularly appreciative of the school's arrangements to meet their children's particular needs, keep them safe and enable them to enjoy school. A few of the parents and carers who responded raised concerns about behaviour in some lessons, as well as the school's effectiveness in communicating information, and how well it responds to suggestions or concerns. The inspection team judged that behaviour was good in and around the school, thanks to the quality of provision and procedures that are in place. Inspectors appreciate that any lapse in communication is a concern for those involved but consider that the school works hard to communicate with parents and carers and act upon their views. The school recognises that it must persist in finding effective ways of communicating with some families, particularly those who are unable to come into school, or do not have access to the internet.

Responses from parents and carers to Ofsted's questionnaire

Ofsted invited all the registered parents and carers of pupils registered at Bishop Fox's Community School to complete a questionnaire about their views of the school.

In the questionnaire, parents and carers were asked to record how strongly they agreed with 13 statements about the school.

The inspection team received 120 completed questionnaires by the end of the on-site inspection. In total, there are 835 pupils registered at the school.

The table above summarises the responses that parents and carers made to each statement. The percentages indicate the proportion of parents and carers giving that response out of the total number of completed questionnaires. Where one or more parents and carers chose not to answer a particular question, the percentages will not add up to 100%.

Glossary

What inspection judgements mean

Grade	Judgement	Description
Grade 1	Outstanding	These features are highly effective. An outstanding school provides exceptionally well for all its pupils' needs.
Grade 2	Good	These are very positive features of a school. A school that is good is serving its pupils well.
Grade 3	Satisfactory	These features are of reasonable quality. A satisfactory school is providing adequately for its pupils.
Grade 4	Inadequate	These features are not of an acceptable standard. An inadequate school needs to make significant improvement in order to meet the needs of its pupils. Ofsted inspectors will make further visits until it improves.

Overall effectiveness of schools

Type of school	Overall effectiveness judgement (percentage of schools)
	Outstanding	Good	Satisfactory	Inadequate
Nursery schools	51	45	0	4
Primary schools	6	41	42	10
Secondary schools	8	34	44	14
Sixth forms	10	37	50	3
Special schools	32	38	25	5
Pupil referral units	12	43	31	14
All schools	9	40	40	10

New school inspection arrangements were introduced on 1 September 2009. This means that inspectors now make some additional judgements that were not made previously.

The data in the table above is for the period 1 September to 31 December 2009 and is the most recently published data available (see www.ofsted.gov.uk). Please note that the sample of schools inspected during the autumn term 2009 was not representative of all schools nationally, as weaker schools are inspected more frequently than good or outstanding schools.

Percentages are rounded and do not always add exactly to 100. Secondary school figures include those that have sixth forms, and sixth form figures include only the data specifically for sixth form inspection judgements.

Common terminology used by inspectors

Achievement:	the progress and success of a pupil in their learning, development or training.
Attainment:	the standard of the pupils' work shown by test and examination results and in lessons.
Capacity to improve:	the proven ability of the school to continue improving. Inspectors base this judgement on what the school has accomplished so far and on the quality of its systems to maintain improvement.
Leadership and management:	the contribution of all the staff with responsibilities, not just the headteacher, to identifying priorities, directing and motivating staff and running the school.
Learning:	how well pupils acquire knowledge, develop their understanding, learn and practise skills and are developing their competence as learners.
Overall effectiveness:	inspectors form a judgement on a school's overall effectiveness based on the findings from their inspection of the school. The following judgements, in particular, influence what the overall effectiveness judgement will be. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>■ The school's capacity for sustained improvement.</li> <li>■ Outcomes for individuals and groups of pupils.</li> <li>■ The quality of teaching.</li> <li>■ The extent to which the curriculum meets pupils' needs, including, where relevant, through partnerships.</li> <li>■ The effectiveness of care, guidance and support.</li> </ul>
Progress:	the rate at which pupils are learning in lessons and over longer periods of time. It is often measured by comparing the pupils' attainment at the end of a key stage with their attainment when they started.
